I. Institute Objectives

A. Content objective: To deepen our comprehension of “the best that has been said and done” (M. Arnold) concerning the Western and Christian intellectual and educational traditions through a careful reading and discussion of selected texts that contain and convey this tradition.

B. Personal objective: To ask and allow God the Holy Spirit to use our reading and discussion of these texts in the (hopefully!) stimulating environment of a Christian learning community to invigorate our thinking about, transform our identities in, and shape the practice of our vocations as Christian scholars and teachers.

C. Institutional objective: To explore in a creative and imaginative way the implications and applications of our reading, discussion, and personal engagement with the content of our summer study on the vision, nature and practice of Christian scholarship and education at Dallas Baptist University.

II. Weekly Institute Activities

A. Reading: Each seminar fellow must read as carefully and as completely as possible the books and collateral readings assigned for each seminar session.

   “Altogether, I think we ought to read only books that bite and sting us. If the book we are reading doesn’t shake us awake like a blow on the skull, why bother reading in the first place? ... A book must be the axe for the frozen sea within us. That is what I believe.”

   Franz Kafka, Letter to Oskar Polak

B. Writing: Each seminar fellow will write two or three pages of reflections on the reading assigned for each seminar session. These reflections will be turned in and I will interact with your written work on a weekly basis (Warning: I may read really insightful comments to the class!). Content suggestions for your weekly writing assignments include the following:

   - Discuss three to five pivotal themes, ideas or insights.
   - Reflect on the discovery of things you never knew before.
   - Present crucial quotes and offer commentary upon them.
C. Discussing: On the basis of your reading and written work, we will spend most of our time each week in intensive conversation over the material assigned for each seminar session.

B. Definition of a 'seminar':

A small group of advanced students in a college or graduate school engaged in original research or intensive study under the guidance of a teacher who meets regularly with them to discuss their reports and findings. A meeting for an exchange of ideas; a conference, a conversation on salient intellectual topics.

What the seminar mode of teaching and learning is not:

1. It is not primarily focused on the teacher.

2. It is not primarily for the purpose of dispensing information, filling the empty minds of students with the contents of the mind of the teacher.
3. It is not primarily a rigorously didactic situation where the teacher lectures.

4. It is not primarily a note-taking situation, though students will want to write down important things discussed in class.

5. It is not typically a test-taking educational environment, for students in this context learn through intensive reading, discussion, research and writing.

6. The classroom is not arranged in a typical setting, with teacher up front and students lined up in desks in rows; rather desks are in a circle, square, or rectangle to facilitate face to face interaction.

What the seminar mode of teaching and learning is:

1. It is a community of mutual learners, teacher included, where each participant is a vital component and contributing member of the studying, teaching, and learning process.

2. It is a community of learning in which the teacher serves as a guide, coach, and facilitator for students in the learning process.

3. It is an education setting that employs the Socratic method called maieutics so that through the reading of texts, questions and answers, discussion, and debate, truth is born in the minds and hearts of each participant.

4. It is an educational environment that creates a bond of mutual respect student to student, student to teacher, and teacher to student.

5. It is a classroom situation that absolutely depends for its success on the faithful, weekly preparation of each member of the learning community, requiring that all read the material well, respond with questions and insights, and come prepared to engage fellow classmates in constructive dialogue.

6. It is an education situation that employs and improves the liberal arts (skills) of reading, writing, thinking, speaking, understanding, etc.

IV. Institute Project

A. Project: Seminar fellows will research and write an in-depth scholarly paper in which they will either (1) presents a discipline-specific model of integrating faith and learning, or (2) practices the art/science of integrating faith and learning on a specific topic in one’s discipline. These papers will then be presented in the Fall 2002 and Spring 2003 Friday Symposium Lecture series. Examples from two books will be provided:

B. Purposes: Two purposes undergird this project: (1) It will give each of us an opportunity to think more deeply and articulate more carefully our ideas on this crucial matter of integrating faith and learning; (2) It will give us the opportunity to share the fruit of our summer’s labor with the DBU community as a whole with a view to institutional influence.

B. Due Date for your project: Whenever your Friday Symposium presentation is scheduled! You DO NOT have to have this project done by the end of our seminar in August!

Reader’s Prayer:
Leave me not, O Gracious Presence, in such hours as I may today devote to the reading of books. . . .
Guide my mind to choose the right books and, having chosen them, to read them in the right way.
When I read for profit, grant that all I read may lead me nearer to Thyself. When I read for recreation, grant that what I read may not lead me away from Thee. Let all my reading refresh my mind that I may more eagerly seek after whatsoever things are pure and fair and true.”
